*SOUNDING A QUEER REBELLION:
LGBTI MUSICAL RESISTANCES IN PERU AND COLOMBIA*

"Sounding a Queer Rebellion: LGBTI Musical Resistances in Latin America" is a project that aims to establish the first Latin American network of academics and artists specialised in the study of music as a resistance tool used to defend and advance the rights of the LGBTI community in the countries of the region. This website, the Queer Music Protest platform, will serve as a repository of project findings, general information, testimonials and network events:

<https://www.queermusicprotest.com>

The network will contribute to bring together academia and civil society in the fight against misinformation regarding LGBTI lives and rights. It also aims to promote the protection of LGBTI communities in a region as violent as South America by bringing together LGBTI groups, artists, musicians and scholars, as well enabling the unification of discourses and production of innovative research and cultural interventions replicable in local contexts.

Die Veranstaltung findet im Rahmen der Lehrveranstaltung
Advanced Research Forum in Ethnomusicology statt
